MEN'S CLUB MINSTREL SHOW

With a substantial nucleus for a building fund, the Men's club of Sierra Madre terminated, Thursday evening, one of the most successful entertainments given here.

After presenting their minstrel show last Friday and Saturday evenings at the Woman's club house, repeated requests caused them to reproduce the performance Thursday evening before an appreciative and large audience.

According to the critics, the show as a whole was well worth attending. From start to finish the audience was kept in an uproar. The end men, Ireland and Henderson, were exercising their talents. The cake walk with Sperry, Loux and the end men was a scream. The songs were well selected and pleasing, the music well timed, the jokes clean and impersonal and the pretty chorus girls charming and graceful.

The hit of the production appeared to be the skit, "Guess Who it Is?" in which a number of the city's "prominent" citizens were depicted under the famous pepper tree in front of the postoffice.

At this point it might be stated, this pepper tree is gradually becoming a landmark in Sierra Madre. Figuratively speaking, nations have fought, bled and died under its branches. Governments and political parties have sprung up over night beneath its boughs, elections have been won and lost here and successful and defeated candidates have sought its friendly shade.

Too much credit cannot be given to Mrs. Jessica H. Wright, who managed the entertainment and rehearsals, and to her able assistants, Miss Yerda M. D. Appleby, leader of the orchestra, Norval McGregor, director of staging, and Louis C. Brooks, advertising manager and "live wire" booster.

The entertainment committee of the Men's club worked as a unit in connection with all the details. They are arranging for further productions in the near future. The minstrel show is to be presented at one of the hospitals in Los Angeles for the benefit of sick and convalescing soldiers and sailors.

The Men's club, which now has a membership of nearly forty, was organized several months ago by members of Ascension parish, Protestant Episcopal church, but it is not a sectarian body. It was created for the purpose of bringing the men of this community together, to establish a better relationship with all classes of men and to equip suitable club rooms, where the men could congregate, play cards, billiards, pool, smoke, read magazines and enjoy that "get-together" spirit which has been lacking in many suburban communities. Any man in this or adjacent communities, who is properly vouched for, is eligible for membership. Several new applications have recently been received. The fees are reasonable.

Those interested in this work can aid much by their cooperation and assistance, morally, spiritually and financially. The club will need tables, rugs, chairs, and other equipment. Remember our song at the minstrel show, "Let's all be good pals together—Remember we're gone, we're gone for a long, long time."

AN OPEN LETTER

Dear Mr. Whiting: I am wondering if the people of Sierra Madre understand the very exceptional opportunity that they have. The lectures given at the Men's Community club each month are so excellent that I feel that every seat should be taken. We have enjoyed three as entertaining and instructive lectures as it has ever been my privilege to attend. Two more will be given before the summer months and the wide acquaintance and close friendship with public speakers of Mr. E. W. Camp, our entertainment chairman, is assurance that the high standard of the past will be maintained. The musical program, arranged by J. D. Mackerras, is always excellent.

Had this course of lectures been given by some lecture bureau, a charge of not less than $2.50 for season tickets would have been made, and the speakers would have faced crowded houses. I want to ask you and your readers to let me know in the next issue of The News why it is that so few attend. My only guess is that people generally assume that something given free is valueless. I hope that all will learn that the Community club is upbuilding in its efforts and that its meetings are decidedly worth while.

Thanking you, I am, very truly yours,

NEWMAN ESSICK.

A DOLLAR FOR HOOVER

The campaign for "Hoover for president" is being carried on by the people and not by Mr. Hoover, who is too busy doing humanitarian work to attend to it. He simply says "If the people want me to run for president I will do so," but he is doing nothing to influence votes for his candidacy.

The millionaire corporation, the money interests and the professional politicians are not flocking to his support or backing his campaign. No, the people who are tired of machine politics and boss rule are doing it and financing it with thousands of little individual contributions.

When the Sierra Madre Hoover club was organized several of the new members contributed $5.00 each to provide a fund for immediate expenses and now we are offering an opportunity for others to contribute, no limit to the amount, either way, to the campaign expense fund.

Hand or send in your contributions to the Hoover club Headquarters, or to C. J. Pegler, club treasurer.

HER SON KILLED AT HIS WORK

Mrs. L. A. Littleton received a telegram last Friday stating that her son, Robert Sheldon, had been killed at Mankato, Minn., as the result of an explosion in a vulcanizing plant.

Mr. Sheldon was sales manager for the Henderson Electric Milking machine company and had charge of some fifty employees. The news was a great shock to his mother and The News joins her many friends in extending sympathy.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

NEXT MONDAY EVENING

The regular meeting of the Board of Trade will be held at the City hall next Monday night and every member is urged to attend, as big plans are being arranged for the future.

The membership committee met in the office of Andrews & H. wks last Monday night and outlined plans for a big drive for members for one week beginning Monday, May 17, and to be launched that night with a big banquet at the Woman's Club house.

Don't forget this date, Monday night, May 17, and save it for the banquet. Come and bring your wife and help start the greatest drive for Sierra Madre the city has ever seen. Besides the "feed" there will be music and speaking, enthusiasm and "pep." It is to be a big get-together meeting for the good of the community. It is expected a celebrated "town builder" will be present to give ideas and plans for doubling the population of Sierra Madre.

This movement is expected to benefit every taxpayer and the banquet is open to the public. Of course, every member and his wife will attend and non-members, anybody, everybody who has the interest of Sierra Madre at heart, are urged to be there. All of the guns, booms and rockets that have been stored or smoldering in the minds of many men will be exploded at this meeting. Come and see the "fireworks" and set off a few (good ideas) yourself.

PREACHERS FOR HOOVER

Rev. W. H. Hannaford, formerly of this place but now pastor of the Logan Heights Congregational church at San Diego, writes The News that at the annual gathering of the Southern California Congregational Ministers at Avalon, Catalina Island, April 7, a straw vote was taken with the following result:

Hoover, 47.
Johnson, 0.

MYSTERY PLAY AT CHURCH

OF THE ASCENSION SUNDAY

On Sunday evening next, May 2, at 7:30, a Mystery Play will be presented at the Church of the Ascension by the Church school children. The title of the play is "The Little Pilgrims and the Book Beloved," and its object is educational in that it presents an interesting story of the compilation of the Book of Common Prayer.

Mother Church, in her love for and guidance of the "Two Little Pilgrims from the Land of Darkness," presents graphically the mission of the Church—to go into the uttermost parts of the earth and to preach the gospel to every creature.

The play is presented under the direction of Deaconess Foster, assisted by the church choir.

About thirty children take part.

HOOVER MEETING TOMORROW

A big Hoover meeting will be held at the Woman's Club house tomorrow (Saturday) night and prominent speakers from the Los Angeles headquarters will address the audience.

If the "people" want to defeat a political acrobat, skilled in high and lofty tumbling from party to party, and elect a successful and experienced business man, the time to do it is at the primaries May 4, as it is conceded that the Republican nominee, elected at that time, will be elected to the presidency at the later election.

Turn out to the meeting tomorrow night whether you are for Hoover or not, and hear an intelligent discussion of the issues.

A "BAD" MAN

Elsewhere in this paper is a notice signed by the superintendent of streets ordering a clean up of yards and vacant lots and for the information of newcomers we will state that the aforesaid superintendent of streets is also city marshal, and also a county deputy sheriff. He totes a big six-gun and he is the best b-a-a-d man we ever had to enforce the laws of this burg.

HOW TO VOTE FOR HOOVER

You can vote for Hoover at the polls on May 4, whether you registered as Republican, Democrat, Prohibitionist, Progressive or any other party, or whether you declined to state your party.

When you go to the polls you will be asked to sign your name to the roster and to write the name of the party for whose candidate you wish to vote. In order to vote for Hoover, sign "Republican" and you will then be given a Republican ballot, the only one on which there are Hoover delegates.

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Onalaska, Wis.—"Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unfit to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, R. 1, Box 69, Onalaska, Wis.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

"INTELLIGENT USE OF INTELLIGENCE" By Marion Emmett Howell.

The year 1920 will be the most prosperous year the United States has ever experienced. And just how successful you will be this year will depend on how well you use your intelligence.

Thousands of people go through life, struggling for a bare existence, when with the intelligent use of their intelligence they would become happy, successful and prosperous.

Every person who becomes successful and prosperous through the study of "INTELLIGENT USE OF INTELLIGENCE" will become a walking, talking advertisement for us. That is why we are making this offer.

To everyone who can obtain a copy of this ad we are going to mail a copy of "INTELLIGENT USE OF INTELLIGENCE" one-half of the regular price, which is $2.00.

Clip out this ad, give the name of this paper, your name and address, send them to us with one dollar ($1.00) and we will mail you a copy by return mail.

You study and put its principles into practice for three months. Then if you feel it has not been the means of helping you in many ways, just return it to us, and we will return your dollar.

That's certainly fair! And as this ad will not appear again you better clip it out and send it today.

ELABORATELY FURNISHED HEADQUARTERS FOR POLICE OF BOLIVIA ON CAR TRUCK

Police officials of La Paz, Bolivia, must ride in fitting state. Hence a motor truck has just been finished for them, and it is believed that this machine is the most elaborate ever manufactured.

The body is designed with three compartments—one for the chauffeur, one for the chief, and the third for the prisoners. The chief's compartment is furnished with handsome swivel chairs, upholstered in blue leather, and richly carpeted. The windows are draped with curtains to match. Among the refinements is an electric cigar lighter. In the prisoners' compartment there are no such luxuries, and to make sure that the arrested will not escape, rings have been placed in the backs of the seats to which the occupants are handcuffed.

The photograph shows the rich and palatially-furnished police car.

DISTILLED WATER FOR BATTERIES

Can Be Had at Any Time by Means of Distilling Arrangement Herein Described.

KEROSENE CAN VERY HANDY

Coil of Copper Tubing Fitted into Common Wooden Bucket Is Essential—Prevent Contamination by Keeping Jar Corked.

To keep storage batteries in a healthy condition for maximum service pure water must be added at stated intervals, usually about once a week. By pure water is meant water reasonably free from mineral impurities which in time would accumulate in the bottom of the cells and impair the action of the battery. The three sources of pure water are rain water, melted artificial ice water and distilled water. The two former are in many cases hard to procure when most needed, but distilled water can be had at any time by means of a simple distilling arrangement herein described.

Distilling is accomplished by driving steam from a body of heated water through a tube sufficiently chilled to condense the steam back into fluid form. The solids are left behind and pure water is the result.

A five-gallon kerosene can makes an admirable boiler. Punch a very small hole through the filler cap to allow for evaporation. Some steam will escape but will not interfere with the operation. Bend a spiral coil of out of about ten feet of one-half-inch copper tubing so it will fit easily into a common wooden water bucket.

Bore a large hole in the side of the bucket near the bottom and fit a wooden stopper to it. The lower end of the coil passes through a snug fitting hole in this stopper and turns downward to discharge its contents. By painting the part of the tubing inclosed by the stopper and the outside of the stopper itself with roofing paint and then forcing both in place a tight joint may be made.

Connect the upper end of the coil and the spout on the boiler with a piece of steam hose or heavy rubber tubing. Wire on each end to make steam-tight.

Provide running cold water for the bucket and pierce the side above the top coil for an overflow. By regulating the flow of water in the bucket the level can be kept above the coils without overflowing. But be sure to keep enough running in so the contents will not become warm.

Fill the boiler three-quarters full and boil it just hard enough to throw off sufficient steam without creating pressure. This will fill the coils with steam, which will quickly condense as it passes down the cold coils and will emerge as pure water in the jar below the discharge.

Keep the jar well corked when full, to prevent contamination from the air.—L. B. Robbins in Popular Science Monthly.

Reckless Driver. When you come right down to it, the reckless driver is rarely wreckless.

OVERHAUL YOUR CAR BEFORE STARTING IT

Many Things Should Be Attended to in Early Spring.

Owner Should Go Over Every Part of Mechanism, Cleaning, Oiling and Tightening Loose Parts—Let Carburetor Alone.

If your car has been in storage during the winter, give it a thorough overhauling at this time of the year, before starting it on the road, says a pioneer automobile man.

Here is a list of the things which need to be done to prepare your car properly for good weather driving, he said:

1. Fill the radiator with water. See that the gasoline tank contains a sufficient quantity of gasoline and that there is plenty of oil in the crank case.
2. Take your storage batteries down and have them tested.
3. Assuming that the tires were taken off when the car was stored and put in a warm place, they should be looked over for weak spots and properly inflated.
4. Scrape the rims and paint them with shellac and flake graphite.
5. Start the motor and drain out the crank case and run the motor so as to pump it thoroughly through the oiling system; then draw it out and fill it up with fresh oil.
6. Remove the carbon from the engine.
7. Grind the valves.
8. Adjust the valves, brakes and bearings.
9. Oil the gear-shifting mechanism, clutch and brake mechanism and all clevis pins.
10. Inspect oil pump and fittings for possible leak.
11. Clean out and fill all grease cups with a good grade of medium weight grease.
12. For the next week put three tablespoonfuls of kerosene in each cylinder to cut the carbon, and let it stand overnight.
13. Clean differential and oil universals and gear sets.

In a word, go over every part of the mechanism, cleaning, oiling and tightening loose parts. Don't take anything for granted. Above all things, do not meddle with the carburetor. When it leaves the factory it is properly adjusted. Ninety per cent of all motorcar trouble is with the ignition.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

Car owners should check up the alignment of the wheels three times a year.

The radiator hose connections in the water system of the motor should be frequently inspected.

Self-starters at present are very reliable; nevertheless this does not mean that this device does not need careful attention.

By keeping the water in the battery up to its proper level it will increase the efficiency of the battery and improve its lasting qualities.

When the spark gap of a plug is too great there is danger of burning out the secondary wire of the coil from the heat engendered by the excessive resistance.

All motors will get noisy in proportion to the wear on the valves. Frequent and proper timing with slight adjustment will save considerable of the wear.

Owners of light cars should bear in mind the fact that in a light machine vibration is more effective in loosening nuts, bolts and screws than in a heavy car.

Highway Improvement

ADVANTAGES OF GOOD ROADS

Prosperity Made to Flow into Any Locality by Construction of Substantial Highways.

The way to make prosperity flow into any locality is to build roads that will last and not have to be done over every few years.

With good roads farmers can deliver all their products directly to towns within a radius of 50 or more miles, and by making more profit themselves they reduce the high cost of living for other people; for merchants are able to take advantage of new sources of supply to buy their stocks under favorable conditions, and sell them to their customers at a lower price.

Millions of dollars are lost every year through perishable goods spoiling on the railroads because of freight delays and complications, writes C. W. Morrison in Farm Journal. Single large firms have actually saved more than $100,000 yearly by using motor-trucks; and the trucks will undoubtedly contribute largely to organized improvement of roads.

Good roads are a paying investment. Local authorities in cities, towns and counties should act without delay to meet the growing national and local demands before trade goes in other directions. It is almost impossible to get back the lost advantage after other districts have won it.

Good roads bring trade and increase property values in a community. They attract home-seekers and industries.

ROAD PROJECTS AUTHORIZED

Plans Involving Improvement of 12,150 Miles at Estimated Cost of $181,143,644 Ratified.

The record indicates that from July 1, 1918, to November 1, 1919, the United States department of agriculture approved 1,345 road projects, involving the improvement of 12,150 miles, at an estimated cost of approximately $181,143,644. Of this sum approximately $78,592,167 represents federal funds. Since the passage of the federal aid road act 1,927 projects have been approved. These call for the construction of 18,506 miles of road, at an estimated cost of $225,267,847, of which about $95,498,140 will be borne by the federal government. Gratifying progress also has been made in connection with the national forest road work. From July 1, 1918, to November 1, 1919, 74 projects, involving 923 miles of road, were approved, and plans were completed for the improvement of 50 others, aggregating 946 miles.

These facts are brought out in the annual report of the secretary of agriculture.

BENEFITS OF BETTER ROADS

Release From Bondage the City Man as Well as Farmer—Solve Living Cost Problem.

To both city man and farmer the good road means release from bondage. Counties and states where good roads have become a part of a progressive program of legislation have seen values rise, and this again has brought home the fact that good roads pay for themselves. More important to the city dweller, however, is the fact that eventually good roads will prove the solution of the high cost of living problem.

COST OF ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Some of Determining Factors Are Right of Way, Material and Culverts or Bridges.

Some of the things which determine the cost of road construction are: Cost of right of way, cost of clearing and grubbing, amount and kind of material to be excavated and amount of filling to be done, amount of ditching for surface drainage and tiling for subdrainage, number and size of stream crossings necessitating culverts or bridges, cost of securing and placing material.

DISADVANTAGE TO TRUCKERS

If Roads Are Not Improved He Is Unable to Compete With Farmer Living on Good Road.

A trucker ten miles from a market for spring crops, such as rhubarb, peas and spinach, is at a great disadvantage if his market road is unimproved, and he may be totally unable to compete with the trucker the same distance from market in another direction on a good road.

There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a wonderful tonic and blood purifier, and is so safe to take, for it is made of roots and herbs and is without alcohol. All druggists. Liquid or tablets.

INDIGESTION

Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food repelling, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cramps of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental maladies that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.

PISO'S

Old Genoa and the New

Piazza de Ferrari, Genoa.

HE IS a wise or fortunate traveler, or both, who, first adventuring forth to enjoyment of the beauties and riches of Italy, approaches her from the sea, and strides ashore from his ship at Genoa. That is better than stealing through Swiss mountains by night, or working round in a train by the French Riviera and crossing a frontier line at Ventimiglia, says the Christian Science Monitor.

It is difficult in the latter circumstance to feel that one has changed from France to Italy; the impression grows slowly and is graduated, which is always bad for an impression.

Come suddenly upon Genoa from the sea (giving a thought as your craft steams in to the famous lighthouse at the entrance to the harbor—it is 400 years old, and of a style suitable to Italy), and Genoa strikes you as a fine, strong representative piece of Italy. Genoa, with her glorious past, is steering herself sternly now to modern materialistic demands.

There is no other city in Italy which combines so many features of the country's life, appearance, history, traditions and sensations as does Genoa. It is a place of measureless variety and enormous contrasts. There may be little of Rome about it, as you might say, nor scarcely anything of the delicacy, the elegance, the aesthetic refinement of Florence.

Foremost Italian Seaport.

But Genoa, this first seaport of Italy, is a busy, commercial place, of enormous achievement both before and during the war, and which up to the beginning of hostilities was doing a trade of over two hundred million American dollars a year. It is a city of vast aspirations, coupled with a practical way of working them out.

In busy Genoa you get occasional reminders of Bologna, of Verona, and of the veritable Venice. And, again, you have here some of the stern modernity of Milan—plain, manufacturing metropolis of the north, bent coldly to the needs of commerce and trade.

Genoa couples in herself some of the romance of the Queen of the Adriatic with the modern commercial hardheadedness of Milan. Milan in Italy is what Manchester is to England; and even in the magnificent opera house, the Scala, where so many of the world's best singers have been nursed, there is the feeling always that here commerce is patronizing it lordly over the arts.

Flavor of Old Italy.

You may poke about the myriad little pinnacles on the roof of the cathedral, and gaze afar to the white-capped Alps overlooking the lakes of wondrous blue, but commerce seems to tinge almost every contemplation. And this is good for Italy, for Italy cannot live on art and tradition alone. But Genoa, next in commerce and first in the ranks of Italian ports, while doing its commerce on the grand scale, has the art and color and flavor of old Italy as well.

Go down by the harbor, and, notwithstanding the busy bustle and the certain evidence of the modern world, one would hardly be astonished to see two gentlemen of old Genoa, attired in brightly colored silks, with swords at sides, emerge from one of the fifteenth-century doorways which abound in that quarter. Everywhere there is this strong contrast.

A part of Genoa is a veritable maze of old, dark streets in which any person without the instinct for getting his whereabouts may speedily become lost. Rare old streets they are, too. In the middle of the city there is one which is most wonderful, the Via Luccoli, a thin slit not more than nine feet wide and hundreds of feet high, so that just the thinnest strip of Italian sky can be seen by the stroller as he lifts his eyes from the show of excellent and varied wares in the shops on either side of the Via Luccoli.

This is Italy; but not far away you may pace down the Via Venti Settembre and observe a strong modernity about the thoroughfare, something of the American style about it, and yet not without its share of Italian elegance. Here are good restaurants, modern in all their appointments, superior shops, a general air of business and bustle, and—yes, indeed—a place with soda fountains for the cooling of Genoese tongues on a summer's day.

So again in the Via Roma; and the traveler will find that the business men who flit about possess a sharpness of manner and of countenance that are not common in the land.

The Monuments of Genoa.

In Genoa we have some fine new buildings. There is the bourse, and the post office—full of accommodation and convenience. There are splendid places like the Piazza de Ferrari, and yet everywhere there is Italian feeling for making the best of beauty's possibilities. Where in the world was ever monument more effectively placed than that of Mazzini in this city, high above the level with a background of a green hill and a tumbling waterfall beyond?

Again, what an admirable and impartial sense of fitness did Genoa display when she—linked as closely as she is now with the New World, with the big American steamships coming up to her harbor again as they did in prewar days—raised a marble monument in her city to Christopher Columbus, who discovered America, even though he were a Spaniard and no Italian.

In Genoa there are innumerable old and splendid palaces. Often they have courtyards in which orange trees flourish. There are fascinating old churches, with strange legends attached to some of their relics.

Everywhere there is something written on the wall, for it is well said that Genoa is a "city of inscriptions." There are records of sea victories of the thirteenth century on the facade of the church of San Matteo; and in many public places the character of persons of old were thus advertised unflatteringly by their enemies, the opinions thus expressed remaining.

The "galleries," or covered shopping arcades, a strong feature of most Italian cities, are especially good in Genoa. It is a rare place, of most absorbing interest. Seven and eight centuries ago it was a powerful maritime state. And now, when the world is once more beginning afresh, and when, as it appears, one of the features of the new economies is to be keen competition among the European ports, Genoa braces herself for that success to which she was advancing before the war.

TAKE THEIR HOUSES ALONG

Miners, Moving to Location of New "Boom," Find Process Much Cheaper Than Building.

Many a mining camp sits rather uneasily on the sands of the desert, as if a west wind, a little stronger than usual, might blow it away like a tumbleweed. If the mines of one place give out, and new ones are found not far away, some of the better houses, indeed, may be moved on rollers to the new townsite. Between Goldfield, Nevada, and the new camp of Divide, for instance, it has been common to see on the road a whole house, perched on a wagon, drawn by four or six or eight horses, and making very good time over the alkali road from the older place to the new location. With the coming of spring, doubtless many more houses that are still sturdy will be moved in this way to the localities of new booms, particularly if the cost of building material remains high. From the distance, an onrushing house with its cloud of dust fits in very well among the strange shapes, colors, and silence of the wide desert in the mountains.

The Lordly Steamer.

Steamship prices have apparently gone the way of all other quotations. A British shipping paper has charted the course of prices a new cargo steamer of 7,500 tons, ready to start to sea for the new owner, would bring at different times, and indicates $1,160,000 as the figure at the end of 1919. In 1914 it would have been $215,000, and in 1908, when shipping touched its low point, it would have been $180,000.

Couldn't Blame Her.

Cascarets never gripe, sicken or inconvenience one like Salts, Oil, Calomel or Harsh Pills. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

MAY BE BONES OF HEROES

Uncertainty as to Human Relics Recently Found Near the Famous Alamo at San Antonio.

Recently workmen have unearthed in a portion of the Alamo grounds at San Antonio bones which may be those of the heroes of Texas whose bodies were cremated by the victorious hordes under Santa Anna.

No effort was made to gather the bones nor to remove them to the inclosure of the Alamo. They were permitted to remain where they were found; and a garage is to be built over the spot, the ground where the discovery was made being outside the walls and a part of the property which has gone to commercial use.

The bones were found some 200 feet south of the wall of the Alamo; and the inquiry made has not fully developed whether they were those of the Texans or whether they were those of the Indians who were used to build the ancient mission and who formed the colony which the friars gathered about them to till their fields and to provide the food and the feed they required.—Houston Post.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

GRIDDLE CAKES and WAFFLES

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

THERE is an art in making flapjack pancakes, griddle cakes or waffles, call them what you will. But it is an art very easily and quickly acquired if you follow the right recipes.

Here are some recipes for a variety of breakfast cakes that will make grandmother envious. The secret, of course, is Royal Baking Powder.

Royal Hot Griddle Cakes

2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons shortening
Mix and sift dry ingredients; add milk and melted shortening; beat well. Bake on slightly greased hot griddle.

Griddle Cakes with Eggs

1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon shortening
Mix and sift dry ingredients; add beaten eggs, milk and melted shortening; mix well. Bake immediately on hot griddle.

Buckwheat Cakes

2 cups buckwheat flour
1 cup flour
6 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 1/2 cups milk
2 1/2 cups milk or milk and water
1 tablespoon molasses
1 tablespoon shortening
Sift together flours, baking powder and salt; add liquid, molasses and melted shortening; beat three minutes. Bake on hot greased griddle.

Waffles

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups milk
2 eggs
1 tablespoon melted shortening
Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add milk to yolks of eggs; mix thoroughly and add to dry ingredients; add melted shortening and mix in beaten whites of eggs. Bake in well greased hot waffle iron until brown. Serve hot with maple syrup. It should take about 1 1/2 minutes to bake each waffle.

To close up and vacate those certain alleys situate in the said City of Sierra Madre, more particularly described as follows:

All that certain alley 10 feet in width running from Montecito Avenue through that certain block of land in said City of Sierra Madre bounded on the North by Montecito Avenue, on the East by Hermosa Avenue, on the South by Central Avenue and on the West by Lima Street, the center line of which said alley commences at a point in the South line of said Montecito Avenue 5 feet West from the Northwest corner of Lot 32 of Mrs. C. B. Jones Subdivision of Sierra Madre, as per map thereof recorded in Book 13, Page 89, Miscellaneous Records of Los Angeles County, and running thence South parallel with the West line of said Hermosa Avenue to a point in the North line of said Central Avenue.

And also all that certain alley 36 feet in width in said block above described which alley contains all that certain land bounded and particularly described as follows:

Commencing at the Southwest corner of Lot 32 of said Mrs. C. B. Jones Subdivision; thence running East 140 feet parallel with the South line of said Montecito Avenue; thence South 36 feet parallel with the West line of said Hermosa Avenue; thence North 140 feet parallel with the North line of said Central Avenue; thence North parallel with the West line of said Hermosa Avenue to the point of beginning.

That the exterior boundaries of the district of lands to be affected or benefited by said work or improvement and to be assessed to pay the damages, cost and expenses thereof are described as follows:

Commencing at the Southeast corner of Montecito Avenue and Lima Street and running thence East along the South line of said Montecito Avenue to the Southwest corner of said Montecito Avenue and Hermosa Avenue; thence South along the West line of said Hermosa Avenue to the Northwest corner of said Hermosa Avenue and Central Avenue; thence West along the North line of said Central Avenue to the Northeast corner of said Central Avenue and said Lima Street; thence North along the East line of said Lima Street to the place of beginning, excepting therefrom any portion of any public street or alley which may be included with the above described assessment district.

Reference is hereby made to said Resolution of Intention No. 95 on file in the Office of the City Clerk, of the City of Sierra Madre, for further particulars.

Dated this 26th day of April, 1920.
A. M. UDELL,
Street Superintendent of the City of Sierra Madre, California.

NOT OBSOLETE

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder."
We long ago were told;
While of myself I wisely ponder,
I know still good 'twill hold.
Reviewing silly things I've said,
All times, when not alone;
I wonder if within my head
There's aught save solid bone.
I see why hearts should fondly grow
When from their ken I stray;
For me affection deeper grow,
The farther I'm away.
—A. L. Soran.

DO YOU SPECULATE?

In another column will be found the advertisement of the Diamond-Louisiana Oil company, which the News publishes because the company has received a permit from the California State Corporation commission for the sale of its stock in this State, and a company must have merit in order to qualify under the State blue sky laws. This means protection for the investors and assures them of honest and efficient management.

This is not in any sense a "wild-cat" proposition, as this company drills wells only in proven territory. They already have two producers in the famous Burkburnett, Texas, field and are drilling a third there.

The News does not recommend the purchase of any stock of any kind, as all stock is more or less speculative, but if you can afford to do so and want the excitement of great prospective returns, the oil business will give you a run for your money and we would advise you to investigate this proposition. The writer has gone into this proposition and we believe it a good one from a speculative standpoint and reasonably certain of big money.

PARENT-TEACHER STATE MEETING IN LOS ANGELES

Special interest is attached to the 21st annual convention of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations in Los Angeles May 18-21, as there will be during that week a great industrial display and pageant. The call for the convention has just been issued by Dr. Jessie A. Russell of Glendale, president, who states that the coming gathering is of the greatest importance to the organization.

This year the three-year term of office expires and an election will be one of the features.

There will be over 1,400 delegates, but as the sessions are open, an attendance of double this number is expected.

Reduced rates on all railroads have been granted and assurance has been given that special attention will be paid to delegates by the hotels. In addition to the Industrial Week celebration during the convention of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, there will be many prominent women of the state in Los Angeles attending other conventions, as the state W. C. T. U. and the P. E. O. state conventions are scheduled during that time in Los Angeles.

THE LOCAL HOOVER CAMPAIGN

The Sierra Madre Hoover club has been busy during the past week and although the membership cards sent out by mail have been returning in gratifying numbers, many "Hooverites" have neglected to send in their cards or call at headquarters (in the News office) and sign the roll.

It is extremely important that every person who favors and will vote for Mr. Hoover at the primaries May 4th, declare their intention by joining the Hoover club so that the central committee may count their strength; also for the good influence a large enrollment will have on the minds of those who hesitate, and are undecided.

SCHOOL TEACHER SHORTAGE

Communities all over Los Angeles county are thoroughly aroused over the prospects of the shortage in school teachers. Immediate action is necessary, looking toward a readjustment of salaries, otherwise this shortage will become acute. It is claimed by those who are in touch with the situation. Reports indicate that 100, 000 teachers left school room work during the past year for better paying employment. The effect of this will be felt in every community, large and small.

Los Angeles City and County teachers are now united in a campaign to place before the public their plea for an immediate readjustment of salaries. They have made no threats, reserving for themselves the right to seek other employment that will provide a living wage. In their behalf the public is expected to take action.

Locally, the citizens point with pride to the public schools in this community. We know of the difficulty in securing efficient teachers for the local schools during the past year. Should the number of available teachers be reduced for the coming school year it is a serious question whether or not there will be sufficient teachers for all the school rooms in this county. Such a condition must not be allowed to occur under any circumstances. This paper heartily endorses an adequate salary, commensurate with the worth and ability of the teachers in the local schools.

Would you Give Comfort to Anarchists

A MAN IS JUDGED BY THE COMPANY HE KEEPS—APPLY THE TEST OF TRUE AMERICANISM

A person may himself not be an anarchist, yet by his association, his acquiescence, or even his silence, may lend aid and comfort to the foes of Americanism.

This is a time when every true American should hit the head of the Bolshevik, soviet, communist, anarchist or any other sect or society who criticize our government and plan for its overthrow.

Herbert C. Hoover's Americanism and staunch loyalty has never been questioned, even by his opponents, and you will remember that the pro-German votes of the Northern States were not cast for Hoover; you will remember that Jim Reed of Missouri, who was kicked out of his own party by his own people, was not a fellow worker with Hoover on the adoption of the League of Nations, and that Lodge and Thompson may have their close political bedfellow—but it is not Herbert C. Hoover.

There is no record of the I. W. W. ever having endorsed Hoover and organizations of a like nature are working tooth and nail to defeat him. One of the strongest points in favor of Hoover's nomination is the fact that William Randolph Hearst is against him.

No, that is not the kind of scum with which Hoover associates, and you will have noticed by the daily press—even the antagonistic daily press—that the supporters of Hoover are clean business men, prominent educators, school teachers, preachers and the great "common people," who have no political axe to grind, but who are sick and tired of "machine politics" and who want a president unhampered by political pledges of reward; a president with a large, extended and successful experience, a broad constructive vision, a 100 per cent tried and proved integrity, and the nerve to carry through the principles of right in spite of all opposition.

Where are you going to line up, brother? With which side do you choose to stand, sister voter?

Herbert C. Hoover is too busy feeding the poor starving people of the far east to personally conduct a campaign for the nomination—in fact, as far as he is concerned, there is no such campaign. He has simply stated that if the people nominate him for president he will accept, because it will be his duty to do so, but he is making no personal effort to influence you or your decision.

Compare this modest and patriotic demeanor with the lavishly expensive, blatant, abusive, deceptive personal campaign being waged by his opponents.

The people look upon Hoover as a sane and practical man—a master of economics, who is ideally equipped by ability and experience to conduct the affairs of our Government in this period of great world-economic readjustment.

When Hoover shall have been nominated for the highest office in the land it will have been accomplished by just such quiet, thinking people as you, who are weary with machine rule and hope for a clean business administration by a broad-minded, competent, Christian gentleman.

J. F. WHITING.

HEAD OF FRUIT GROWERS EXCHANGE FOR HOOVER

(By G. Harold Powell, General Manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange)

From July, 1917, to January, 1919, I was in charge of the Division of Perishable Foods of the United States Food Administration under Mr. Hoover's direction. During this period I came in contact with Mr. Hoover and had an unusual opportunity of making an accurate valuation of the man as a man, as a statesman, and as organizer and administrator of one of the most important of the war activities.

Some of Mr. Hoover's leading characteristics that appeal to me are these:

FIRST: The great predominant characteristic of Herbert Hoover is his intense American patriotism, his belief in American institutions, and his abiding faith in American men and women. Few men, in their lifetime, have contributed to their country in constructive, patriotic service, as did Mr. Hoover during the war.

I watched Mr. Hoover for eighteen months dealing with foreign governments and I have never seen any public man more loyal to the interests of his country, and at the same time more fair to those with whom he dealt, than was Mr. Hoover during the delicate and trying negotiations with foreign governments for the furnishing of food supplies.

Mr. Hoover's Americanism was shown by his wonderful faith in the soundness of heart of the American people—especially in his almost sublime confidence in what the women of America would do, whenever they saw clearly the part which they could perform in winning the war. No man has done more to carry Americanism around the world, and no one has done more to build up a great organization founded upon democratic lines, in which service to the country was the keynote.

SECOND: A very striking thing is the tremendous loyalty which Mr. Hoover inspires in everyone who is associated with him. I watched this particularly in the Food Administration and also in other governmental departments that came in contact with him, and I think this spirit of loyalty on the part of men of all ages, of women, of business interests and of every type of citizen who worked with him, is one of the most striking tributes to his quality as a great leader. Our country needs men with great leading power, it needs men in public office who inspire the confidence of the great American public as well as those selected to carry out the functions of government.

THIRD: Mr. Hoover has a remarkable ability to analyze problems that come before him. His grasp of large questions in instantaneous. He has the faculty of sweeping away the non-essentials of a situation and driving straight to its heart. I have never known a man who had this keen analytical power so highly developed. Mr. Hoover's knowledge of the different problems affecting the world commerce is encyclopedic, and he has the essential facts of production, export and import at his finger tips.

FOURTH: Mr. Hoover has a deep understanding of international questions, not only as they relate to the food industries but also as they bear upon the complex economic and social questions arising out of the war. Acting as the chairman of the Inter-Alleied Council of Relief after the armistice, he exerted on the problems confronting Europe a greater constructive influence than any man at the peace conference. As one distinguished historian has said, "He was the only man who left the Peace Conference with an enhanced reputation." His statesmanship is of the highest order, fully competent to handle the domestic or international problems that confront America at the present time.

FIFTH: Mr. Hoover's fundamental understanding of American agriculture stood out strongly during the war. His attitude toward the American farmer was of sympathetic cooperation in developing the highest possible production. He believed that anything that interfered with the increase in production was fundamentally unsound and that as the war progressed, the American farmer would prove the most stable influence among all classes of people. The record of the Food Administration, and the attitude of the producer, showed how sound was this fundamental concept.

SIXTH: Mr. Hoover always tried to get results by persuasion rather than coercion. I believe one of the chief factors in Mr. Hoover's great success in handling our Food Administration, while in other countries Food Administrators failed, was his abiding faith in the inherent patriotism of the men and women of America. "If they fail in doing their part," he would say, "it will be largely because we have not succeeded in making clear what is needed." The heroic reponse of American womanhood to Mr. Hoover's confidence was one of the brightest pages in the war's history.

He believed that the heart of the average business man was sound and true and that the business interests of the country would cooperate with the government to any extent in handling its problems, providing they understood the part they should play. Mr. Hoover is particularly able and forceful in handling complicated business conferences. It is here, perhaps, as nowhere else, that his genius as a diplomat and a leader is brought into play. I have seen him many times in conference with men representing the sources of foods that were needed for the armies and civilian populations abroad and for our own people, and sometimes there was a wide difference of opinion regarding the extent of their responsibilities to our government. Mr. Hoover would outline in his clear, direct way the relation of their industry to the winning of the war. When he was through the leaders of these great industries invariably supported him in the solution of the problem at hand. Men who came to Washington with fixed opposition to the policies of the Food Administration went away feeling that Mr. Hoover's vision was larger than their own. They trusted him implicitly and cooperated with him to any extent which he felt was necessary in handling a war problem.

SEVENTH: A sympathetic attitude toward an industry, or a person, that needs help is characteristic of Mr. Hoover. During the war he showed an active interest in the industries that required assistance in order to maintain production. He held the view that the rules and regulations of the Food Administration and all of the Administration's activities, should be directed primarily toward increasing production, and that such regulation was necessarily directed toward the trades should deal chiefly with the prevention of unfair business practices, abnormal profits and abnormal prices. He recognized that without some trade regulation these abuses would follow the reductions of food stocks through purchases by the inter-Alleied Governments, and that proper rules would lead to confidence in the distribution and sale of food during the war.

Mr. Hoover did not believe in interfering with the law of supply and demand. The only exceptions to this policy were made where the balance of supply and demand had been abrogated through the tremendous purchasing power of the Government, thereby removing from domestic consumption a large part of the needed food supply. Under these conditions, rules and regulations were made which helped hold down the price to the consumer on the remaining supply, but the avenues of trade were always kept as open as possible.

EIGHTH: In selecting a man to handle the different branches of work in the Food Administration, Mr. Hoover thought only of their qualifications for shouldering the responsibilities to be placed upon them. During the entire time he was in Washington I never heard Mr. Hoover make an inquiry regarding the political affiliations of any man. He chose men because they were specially qualified by training and experience to interpret their industries to the Administration or because of their training in other lines gave them an open mind and the capacity to quickly absorb a new situation.

With the exception of the executives, most of the men in the Food Administration were drawn from the different food trades. The Food Control Act related primarily to the handling and control of merchants, and Mr. Hoover wisely adopted the policy of selecting men of national reputation to interpret the trade problems to the Administration. As a result, in interpreting the Food Administration to his industry, each of these men carried the greatest confidence and strength.

NINTH: One of Mr. Hoover's characteristics was that of preserving an independence in forming his own conclusions. After extended conferences he reserved to himself the right to make a decision or to come to a conclusion. Once his decision was made he accepted full responsibility and stood squarely behind the men who were chosen to carry out the work of the Administration. He chose his advisors with great care and then gave them his full support and confidence in the discharge of their responsibilities.

TENTH: Mr. Hoover's simplicity and modesty are among his most attractive qualities. He almost shrinks from public appearance, he hesitates to make public addresses, and he has a modesty toward questions affecting himself that endears him to his asso-

"HOOVER, WORLD'S MOST DISTINGUISHED CITIZEN"

Acknowledgment Given Californian for Remarkable Work—Press Lauds Him

SAN FRANCISCO (Special).—Headquarters in this city of the Hoover Republican club compiled the following brief extracts from leading publications and newspapers showing the judgment placed upon Hoover and his capabilities for president by different representative journals of the nation.

It remained for a California paper, the Santa Cruz "Surf," to place a characterization upon Hoover that is being generally accepted as the most comprehensive description of Hoover and his work that has been written in a single line. "The Surf" describes Hoover as "the man who came out of the war the most distinguished private citizen in the world."

Other comments are:

The New York "World" (Editorial): In the judgment of "The World" the best equipped and best qualified man to succeed Woodrow Wilson as president of the United States is Herbert C. Hoover.

The American people are tired of professional politicians and disgusted with party politics. The old party lines have broken down so far as the rank and file of voters are concerned, and in respect to principles both parties are bankrupt.

"The Saturday Evening Post" (Editorial): Why not use a little common sense, have done with con and try coalition in its place? Why not force both the old parties to endorse the same man for president—a non-partisan business man who will form a coalition government from the best men in both parties and that still larger element of straight-thinking, clear-headed Americans who have no stomach for the old show that is being put on and who want to see something new and clean on the national stage for a change?

California "Christian Advocate," by J. H. Wythe: The real issue of the hour is the League of Nations, and the existence of the United States and of our civilization.

These vital ends will have the best chance to be secured by the election as our next president of Herbert Hoover.

"The Saturday Evening Post" (Editorial): We need men in office with the constructive-engineer type of mind—for rebuilding the world is a job of construction, a business job. Men of broad view, of dynamic power, of trained brain are scarce in every occupation, but they can be found in American business, as well as in the professions, if we look for them in the right place.

Herbert C. Hoover.

"New Republic" (Editorial): He is the candidate of the constructively-minded people of America, and the man who stands higher in the estimation of Europe than any other living American.

"Life" (Editorial): We think of him as a man who can put more milk into more people, and more milk into more babies, and more money into empty pockets, and more roofs over unsheltered families, and more clothes on bodies and shoes on bare feet than anyone else in sight. These are all homely exploits, but the world just now needs to have them done. It needs Hoover, and Hoover's knowledge, and his great gift of organization and his great heart.

Los Angeles "Times," by Alma Whitaker: That is one's instinctive feeling about Hoover—a thoroughly normal person, a first-class standard human being, devoid of frilly excrescences. We know that he would wear well, that his colors would not come out in the wash.

Santa Cruz "Surf": Without military rank, or official position, he became more influential than any monarch, and came out of the war the most distinguished private citizen in the world.

Herbert Hoover is a Remarkable Type

Man Who Hundreds of Thousands of Citizens Believe Should Be President—Has Had Extraordinary Career

SAN FRANCISCO (Special).—It has been said of Herbert Hoover that he came out of the war "the most distinguished private citizen in the world."

Hoover's projection into the Presidential situation is one of the most interesting phenomena of American politics. A plain, self-made man of the people, this world citizen of today was the son of a country blacksmith who worked his way through Stanford University, and, in a remarkably short space of time, became renowned as the world's greatest mining expert and authority. He has been for many years a trustee of Stanford University.

While the name of Hoover bulked large in the mining, scientific and engineering world long before the war centered him in an international spotlight, he was comparatively unknown to the great body of his fellow American citizens.

No other American citizen ever was called upon to play the part as an international executive and administrator that Hoover was called upon to fill when he undertook to administer relief in Belgium. He organized the commission for Belgian relief, through whose agency more than ten million people were fed for nearly five years. The Children's Bureau of the American Relief Administration is today under Hoover's direction, through which, without Government financing, he is feeding 2,500,000 children in Poland, Austria, Hungary and the Balkans—children who would otherwise die of starvation.

In April, 1917, when this country entered the war, Hoover answered the call of the President to act as United States Food Administrator. Through his offices food production increased, waste and extravagance were eliminated, and middlemen's profits regulated and to the public.

These are a few of the high-light impressions I gained of Mr. Hoover while working with him in the Food Administration.

I believe that Mr. Hoover is today one of America's great men. He has had a broad experience in international affairs and the handling of domestic problems. He has a sympathy with labor, and intelligent appreciation of the problems of the employer and of the laboring people, an understanding of the business interests of the country and of its social and economic problems. Mr. Hoover's whole life stands for constructive business, constructive dealing with labor, with agriculture, and for a far-seeing constructive statesmanship.

The wars in which the United States has engaged have brought forth some of the world's greatest characters. The American Revolution gave us George Washington; the Civil War Abraham Lincoln; the Spanish war Theodore Roosevelt. The greatest contribution of the world's great war to the finest ideals of America is Herbert Hoover.

Will Johnson Jump the Party?

WILL YOU VOTE FOR A MAN WHO MAY BETRAY YOU AT THE CONVENTION?

New York, April 26.—Hearst's New York "American" disclosed today that Hiram Johnson is the man whom Hearst has picked to head a third party following the democratic convention. Arthur Brisbane, Hearst's $50,000 editorial writer, is responsible for the disclosure of Hearst's sinister purpose.

According to Brisbane, Johnson should go to the Chicago convention as a delegate and then get what he wants or declare for a third party. "What would the delegates reply?" asks Brisbane. "If Johnson said, 'right in this state (Illinois) forty-five thousand Republican voters wrote my name on the ballot. That never happened before. Roosevelt once had his name written in twelve thousand times. The voters of this country have already named me. YOU DO THE SAME IF YOU DON'T WANT TO SEE ME ELECTED ON AN INDEPENDENT TICKET.'"

How far Hearst's negotiations with Johnson have proceeded was not disclosed by Brisbane's editorial, which leaps far beyond anything that Hearst has disclosed, in his sinister and active support of Johnson through money and influence and his action in retaining Johnson as counselor in a law suit at a fee reliably reported at $20,000, in injunction proceedings brought against Hearst, charging him with stealing news from news associations.

That Hearst has been an active and vigorous supporter of Johnson from the moment that Johnson took the stump to fight against peace and the League of Nations in any form, and during the time that he trailed the President about the country, and that every ounce of Hearst influence is out for Johnson, has long been known. He not only fed the American people and the American army, but he stabilized the food supply of the world.

Busy as he was with these tremendous works, Hoover's inexhaustible energy found time to administer the one hundred million dollar fund appropriated by Congress for European relief.

Following the signing of the armistice, he was called to Europe to represent the United States as chairman of the Supreme Economic Council. Under his direction the railways, telegraph and telephone systems and mines of Europe were operated from December, 1918, to August, 1919. Hoover brought order out of European chaos.

Hoover stands for the League of Nations, with reservations clearly safeguarding the United States and its Constitution; he stands for the Treaty, with proper safeguards; he stands for a clearly-defined, constructive program for capital and labor; for a business administration of the national Government, with a minimum interference in the economic activities of the country; for the co-ordination of expenditure of Government funds with Government income, through a national budget system; for decreasing the cost of living; and for reduction of taxes through reduction of waste.

Herbert Hoover was born in Iowa; is 46 years of age; is married to a California girl, who was Miss Lou Henry, of Monterey, and is the father of two sons.

This is the man—engineer, organizer, administrator, statesman, recognized authority on world conditions, outspoken leader of national thought, modest, fearless and sympathetic American—whom hundreds of thousands of his fellow citizens seek to place in the presidential chair.

known, but today's declaration in Hearst's "American" was the first expression to indicate publicly how far this alliance had gone.

Hearst has been working on the formation of a third party for months and it was pointed out here that Johnson having already broken with the Republican party three times, would not be deterred by his past record from breaking again, if once more his personal ambitions should demand it.

JOHNSON'S CALIFORNIA MILLIONAIRE BACKERS

NEW YORK "TRIBUNE" DRAWS ATTENTION TO DELEGATES ON SENATOR'S TICKET

The names of the nine California millionaires, whose combined wealth is estimated as in excess of $150,000,000, are: William H. Crocker, Michel H. de Young, Frank P. Flint, George I. Cochran, John B. Miller, Herbert Fleishbacker, Joseph R. Knowland, James Rolph and Mrs. Charles K. McClatchy. In addition there are six others on the Johnson delegate ticket of twenty-six who have a Bradstreet rating in excess of $100,000.

It is not necessary to point out to any Californian that the foregoing list includes the backbone, and a good many of the ribs, of the "Southern Pacific crowd," whose unhorsing is Hiram Johnson's chief claim to glory. Now the bunch is heartily for him to the last check in its several pocket-books.

What a Change!

Senator Johnson obviously holds that there are good millionaires and bad millionaires, and that the way to distinguish between the two is to ascertain whether they are for him or not. As long as Mr. Crocker, Editor DeYoung, Former Senator Flint and others on the foregoing list opposed Senator Johnson, he denounced them as pirates and corruptionists—said there was not and never would be room for them and himself in the same political house; but now Senator Johnson having made his peace with them, he selects them to be his trusted representatives at Chicago—to vote for him until he releases them.

Johnson admits to having received fees from Hearst, another multi-millionaire; does not deny that he left his place of service at Washington to serve his client (but a lawyer is able to defend himself when thus working for his pocketbook).

But no explanation is offered for the strange fact that in California, either he has gone over to the "old gang" or the "old gang" for reasons it deems good, has come over to him.

Senator Johnson has lined up in behalf of the pro-Germans the Non-partisan Leaguers, whose chiefs have been convicted of disloyalty; the Plumb planners, for whose scheme he has declared; the Hearstites of New York, and the Thompsonites of Chicago and many other motley elements. But strangest amid his following are the millionaires of California who are his chief banner bearers in his home State.—New York Tribune.

ARCADIA BALLOON SCHOOL BOND ISSUE FOR $93,000

Briefly stated, the bond issue of approximately $93,000, to be voted May 4, is to provide money to enable the county to present to the United States government 185½ acres of land now occupied as the Arcadia Balloon site.

To facilitate the establishment of this school prior to the war, the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles guaranteed to the government that the necessary land would be donated. To carry out this promise, it was necessary to give bond to the government for the carrying out of this contract. As the Chamber of Commerce could not bond itself, some thirty members signed this bond, there being some assurance from the county that provision would be made for payment when due. The government has demanded fulfillment of the obligation and the legislature has passed an act enabling the county to bond itself for this purpose.

The land belonged to Anita M. Baldwin and was valued at $1,200 per acre. She agreed to accept $1,000 an acre and as her part of the contribution gave $200 an acre, which brought the purchase price to the Chamber of Commerce guarantors to $800 an acre. The government agreed to purchase the buildings on the land for $55,654, bringing the cost of the land, (approximately $148,000) down to approximately $93,000.

This agreement was entered into March 4, 1918. The government has the right to exercise its option to acquire the land on or before July 1, 1920, and has given notice that it is ready to accept deed for the property and pay for the buildings thereon, as per agreement.

The bond issue entails a separate ballot. A special election for this purpose alone would cost approximately $150,000 or nearly twice the amount of the bond issue. The bond issue is the total outlay for the county to make permanent the Balloon School, which in one year—from July 1, 1918, to August 31, 1919,—disbursed $1,017,547. The annual payroll at this time is several times the purchase price of the site.

The importance of not only maintaining the Balloon School permanently but lending every effort to its development is obvious for many reasons:

First the climatic conditions are such in this vicinity that a maximum of efficiency in balloon work is attainable. This section is conceded to have the most advantages of any in the world and to be the most logical spot for aeronautical development.

Second, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, with its membership of more than 6200, which has been developing Southern California for thirty-two years, has created an Aeronautical and Meteorological Department and placed in charge an expert in the person of Dr. Ford Carpenter who is co-operating with all government agents in preparing data and paving the way for commercial aeronautics. Arcadia Balloon School is the only source of accurate data as to air currents in the vicinity of Los Angeles. It has been the center of activity in aerial investigations since its establishments. It has placed its equipment and knowledge at the disposal of commercial fliers when within the regulations of its department.

The Arcadia Balloon School bears the same relation to aerial work in Southern California as an immense light-house is to marine development. The data obtained by the officials of the Balloon School already has brought distinction to Southern California.

Third, the actual manufacture of dirigible airships in Los Angeles will begin May 1st and it is of utmost importance that a government balloon school be adjacent for co-operation in research work. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company have already built one hangar on their field near their factory as a start toward the development of the industry on the Pacific Coast. Larger developments will follow. This great concern urges that everything possible be done to stimulate activity at the school.

Vote for Hoover.

Attend the big Hoover meeting at Woman's Club house tomorrow (Saturday) night.

A. T. Gay will leave today for Big Bear and expects to be gone about ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Saunders were dinner guests at Hartwood one night this week.

Mrs. George Humphries returned home last week after a month's stay at Murietta Hot Springs.

Mrs. Frank Hart will entertain the Modern Priscillas Thursday afternoon, May 6, at Hartwood from 2 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. John S. Jefferson left Thursday for her home in San Bernardino after spending two weeks in Sierra Madre Canyon.

Dr. and Mrs. Hyde, who have been guests for the winter at the home of Mrs. Hyde's sister, Mrs. M. D. Rust, left Friday for their home in New York.

Mrs. E. H. Boardman, who has been the guest this winter of her cousin, Mr. W. S. Andrews, is preparing to leave for her home in Hartford, Connecticut.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Noble of Lockport, New York, and Mr. and Mrs. William Bewley of Los Angeles spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Welsher.

Mrs. Howard Hill, Mrs. Marie Watson and Miss Annie Green attended the annual Missionary Board meetings which were held last week at Santa Ana.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. McCarron of 213 N. Hermosa, are the proud parents of a brand new girl. Mother and baby are at the Pasadena hospital and doing nicely.

On Tuesday the Order of St. Catherine held a regular meeting at the home of the Misses Elsner on East Grand View. Miss Martha Shaw was hostess last week.

The Dickens Circle was entertained on Wednesday by Mrs. F. J. Hart at "Hartwood." A typical English afternoon tea was served to the members and their house guests.

Miss Lottie Humphries returned home last week after a month's stay at Glenn Ranch resort in San Bernardino county, where she has been recuperating after an attack of the grippe.

Mr. Charles E. Askew of 61 Suffolk avenue will leave Monday, May 3, on an auto trip east. Mr. E. C. Hammond, who has been spending the winter here, will accompany him as far as Illinois.

Miss Christine Johnson has accepted a position as stenographer and bookkeeper for the Lambert ranch near Lamanda. She will continue to reside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Fennel at Scenic Point.

Miss Hazel Woodward left for Chicago on Tuesday, accompanied by her cousin, Mrs. T. C. Banzet, who has been spending the winter in Sierra Madre. Miss Woodward expects to be gone until next fall.

Sunday school workers from over 500 Sunday schools in Los Angeles county will gather at Long Beach, May 5-7, at the Annual convention of the Los Angeles County Sunday School association.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held in the church parlors on Tuesday, May 4. Those in charge of the meeting are Dr. May Laidlaw and Mrs. Marie Watson. Every one is urged to be present, as it is a very important meeting.

Elliott Rhodes, who is manager of track at Pasadena High school, attended the state track meet which was held at Bakersfield last Saturday. He was accompanied by Mr. Walter Wilson, principal of the school, Gilbert Main, coach of track, and Norman Price, miler. The party enjoyed a pleasant trip by auto, starting Friday morning and returning late Saturday.

OOD MINSTREL SHOW

On the front page is a report of the minstrel show written by the local editor and printed before the last performance, given last night.

The "boss" had not attended the first two shows but was dragged out last night by his boss and we just can't help writing a word about the best amateur show we have ever seen.

Who would have thought Tom Henderson could put it over as he did, and Allen Gay as an impersonator astonished his closest friends. And Fred Sperry doubling in several parts was a scream, especially as a female impersonator. And Jim Hawks' English impersonation—oh, say!

The orchestra should get at least half a column of praise, but it's time to go to press and good news matter must be "set out" to make room for this. Everybody who had a part in the show is to be congratulated.

LUNCHEON AND SHOWER FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Harriet Sperry was hostess last Saturday at a charmingly appointed luncheon and kitchen shower given in honor of Miss Martha Shaw, whose marriage to C. H. Perry will be celebrated in May.

A centerpiece of Cecil Bruner roses with small bouquets of the same blossoms at each place was very attractive.

Guests who enjoyed this affair were the Misses Martha Shaw, Bae Farman, Hermina Skvarla, Virginia Jones and Frances Ralston of Pasadena.

EDUCATION

The public school teacher has a great responsibility. Briefly, the future of the boys and girls of today, depends upon their school training.

DO YOU KNOW that thousands of teachers are leaving school work because they are underpaid?

DO YOU KNOW that many others are planning to go into other lines of work that pay a living wage unless there is an adjustment of teachers' salaries?

Without well paid teachers the school pupils will suffer. Pay the teachers a living wage and the boys and girls of today are better equipped to fight the stern battles of life.

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today, and you will see results from the right treatment. Write for advice. PLAN UNIQUE FOREST SYSTEM
New Yorkers Aim to Make County One Continuous Park, and Have the Trees Pay Taxes.

To make the logging acre work is the plan of Otsego county, New York, which has started a campaign to plant a forest of 100 acres on the waste lands in each of the 24 townships of that county.

The plans, says the New York Times, are to develop a county system similar to the city park plan, with its harmonized system of connecting boulevards. The project involves the development of a comprehensive highway system.

The forests will be located so that they will serve as green nature signboards along the highways, to advertise to the world that the county has its own forests, owned, planted and maintained by the public for the future generations.

As the trees mature they will provide in the future an income which will mean an actual cash return to serve as an offset against taxation. European towns often pay the cost of operation of their government from their forests, having no taxes, but this requires a greater area of forest than is proposed for Otsego.

Tarzan and The Jewels of Opar

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Author of "TARZAN OF THE APES," "SON OF TARZAN"

In a moment the victim flashed beneath the limb and at the same instant the ape-man above sprang out and down upon its back. The weight of the man's body carried the deer to the ground. It stumbled forward once in a futile effort to rise and then mighty muscles dragged its head far back, gave the neck a vicious wrench and Bara was dead.

Quick had been the killing, and equally quick were the ape-man's subsequent actions, for who might know what manner of killer pursued Bara, or how close at hand he might be? Scarce had the neck of the victim snapped than the carcass was hanging over one of Tarzan's broad shoulders, and an instant later the ape-man was perched once more among the lower branches of a tree above the trail, his keen, gray eyes scanning the pathway down which the deer had fled.

His sharp eyes saw the muzzle of the leading horse as it came into view around a bend in the tortuous trail, and one by one they scrutinized the riders as they passed beneath him in single file.

Beneath him, as unconscious of his presence as were the Abyssinians before and behind him, rode Albert Werper, while the ape-man scrutinized the Belgian for some sign of the pouch which he had stolen.

As the Abyssinians rode toward the south, a giant figure hovered over upon their trail—a huge, almost naked white man, who carried the bloody carcass of a deer upon his shoulders, for Tarzan knew that he might not have another opportunity to hunt for some time if he were to follow the Belgian.

A two days' march brought them to a level plain beyond which lay mountains—a plain which Tarzan remembered and which aroused within him vague half memories and strange longings. Beside a charred pile of timbers the Abyssinians halted, and Tarzan, sneaking close and concealing himself in nearby shrubbery, watched them in wonderment. He saw them digging up the earth and he wondered if they had hidden meat there in the past and now had come for it. Then he recalled how he had buried his pretty pebbles and the suggestion that had caused him to do it. They were digging for the things the blacks had buried here!

Presently he saw them uncover a dirty yellow object, and he witnessed the joy of Werper and of Abdul Mourak as the grimy object was exposed to view. One by one they unearthed many similar pieces, all of the same uniform dirty yellow, until a pile of them lay upon the ground, a pile which Abdul Mourak fondled and petted in an ecstasy of greed.

Something stirred in the ape-man's mind as he looked long upon the golden ingots. Where had he seen such before? What were they? He recalled the black men who had buried them. The things must be theirs. Werper was stealing them as he had stolen Tarzan's pouch of pebbles. The ape-man's eyes blazed in anger. He would like to find the black men and lead them against these thieves.

As all these things ran through the active mind of a party of men moved out of the forest at the edge of the plain and advanced toward the ruins of the burned bungalow.

Abdul Mourak, always watchful, was the first to see them, but already they ruins of the Englishman's bungalow. Some one had forestalled him—another had come for the treasure ahead of him.

The Arab cared not whom the thieves might be. They would not give up the gold without a battle. Of that he was certain, and with a wild whoop and a command to his followers, Achmet Zek put spurs to his horse and dashed down upon the Abyssinians, and after him, waving their long guns above their heads, yelling and cursing, came his motley horde of cut-throat followers.

The men of Abdul Mourak met them with a volley which emptied a few saddles, and then the raiders were among them, and sword, pistol and musket, each was doing its most hideous and bloody work.

Achmet Zek, spying Werper at the first charge, bore down upon the Belgian, and the latter, terrified by contemplation of the fate he deserved, turned his horse's head and dashed madly away in an effort to escape. Shouting to a lieutenant to take command, and urging him upon pain of death to dispatch the Abyssinians and bring the gold back to his camp, Achmet Zek set off across the plain in pursuit of the Belgian, his wicked nature unable to forego the pleasures of revenge, even at the risk of sacrificing the treasure.

Werper, going over his head rolled a few yards farther on, scrambled to his feet and ran back. Seizing the reins he tugged to drag the beast to his feet; but the animal would not or could not rise, and as the Belgian cursed and struck him, Achmet Zek appeared in view.

Instantly the Belgian ceased his efforts with the dying animal at his feet, and seizing his rifle, dropped behind the horse and fired at the oncoming Arab.

His bullet, going low, struck Achmet Zek's horse in the breast, bringing him down a hundred yards from where Werper lay preparing to fire a second shot.

The Arab, who had gone down with his mount, was standing astride him, and seeing the Belgian's strategic position behind his fallen horse, lost no time in taking up a similar one behind his own.

And there the two lay, alternately firing at and cursing each other, while from behind the Arab, Tarzan of the Apes approached to the edge of the forest. Keeping to one side of the trail, the ape-man came presently to a point where he could look down in comparative safety upon the fighters. First one and then the other would partially raise himself above his breastwork of horseflesh, fire his weapon and immediately drop flat behind his shelter, where he would reload and repeat the act a moment later.

Werper had fired all but a single cartridge, when, during a lull in the fighting, he called aloud to his opponent.

"Achmet Zek," he cried, "Allah alone knows which one of us may leave our bones to rot where he lies upon this trail today if we keep up our foolish battle. You wish the contents of the pouch I wear about my waist, and I wish my life and my liberty even more than I do the jewels. Let us each, then, take that which he most desires and go our separate ways in peace. I will lay the pouch upon the carcass of my horse, where you may see it, and you, in turn, will lay your gun upon your horse, with butt toward me. Then I will go away, leaving the pouch to you, and you will let me go in safety. I want only my life, and my freedom."

The Arab thought in silence for a moment. Then he spoke. His reply was influenced by the fact that he had expended his last shot.

"Go your way, then," he growled, "leaving the pouch in plain sight behind you. See, I lay my gun thus, with the butt toward you. Go."

Regretfully Werper laid the pouch, its contents undisturbed, upon the body of his horse, rose, and taking his rifle with him, backed slowly down the trail until a turn hid him from the view of the watchful Arab.

But Achmet Zek was no fool to expose himself to the blackened honor of a thief and a murderer. Taking his long gun with him, he left the trail, entering the rank and tangled vegetation which walled it, and crawling slowly forward on hands and knees he paralleled the trail; but never for an instant was his body exposed to the rifle of the hidden assassin.

Thus Achmet Zek advanced until he had come opposite the dead horse of his enemy. The pouch lay there in full view, while a short distance along the trail Werper waited in growing impatience and nervousness, wondering why the Arab did not come to claim his reward.

Presently he saw the muzzle of a rifle appear suddenly and mysteriously a few inches above the pouch, and before he could realize the cunning trick that the Arab had played upon him the sight of the weapon was abruptly hooked into the rawhide strap of the pouch, and the latter was drawn quickly from his view into the dense foliage at the trail's side.

There was another who had seen the pouch and recognized it, who advanced with Achmet Zek, hovering above him, as silent and as sure as death itself, and as the Arab, finding a little spot less overgrown with bushes than he had yet encountered, prepared to gloat his eyes upon the contents of the pouch, Tarzan paused directly above him, intent upon the same object.

Wetting his thin lips with his tongue, Achmet Zek loosened the tie strings which closed the mouth of the pouch, and cupping one clawlike hand poured forth a portion of the contents into his palm.

A single look he took at the stones lying in his hand. His eyes narrowed, a curse broke from his lips, and he hurled the small objects upon the ground disdainfully. Quickly he emptied the balance of the contents until he had scanned each separate stone, and as he dumped them all upon the ground and stamped upon them his rage grew until the muscles of his face worked in demonlike fury, and his fingers clenched until his nails bit into the flesh.

Above, Tarzan watched in wonderment. He had been curious to discover what all the pow-wow about his pouch had meant. He wanted to see what the Arab would do after the other had gone away, leaving the pouch behind him, and, having satisfied his curiosity, he would then have pounced upon Achmet Zek and taken the pouch and his pretty pebbles away from him, for did they not belong to Tarzan?

He saw the Arab now throw aside the empty pouch, and grasping his long gun by the barrel, clublike, sneak stealthily through the jungle beside the trail along which Werper had gone.

As the man disappeared from his view, Tarzan dropped to the ground and commenced gathering up the spilled contents of the pouch, and the moment that he obtained his first near view of the scattered pebbles he understood the rage of the Arab, for instead of the glittering and scintillating gems which had first caught and held the attention of the ape-man, the pouch had now contained but a collection of ordinary river pebbles.

CHAPTER XV.

Jane Clayton Again a Prisoner.

Mugambi, after his successful break for liberty, had fallen upon hard times. His way had led him through a country with which he was unfamiliar, a jungle country in which he could find no water, and but little food, so that after several days of wandering he found himself so reduced in strength that he could barely drag himself along.

A few stagnant pools at considerable distances apart saved him from death by thirst; but his was a pitiable state when finally he stumbled by accident upon a large river in a country where fruit was abundant, and also game which he might bag by means of a combination of stealth, cunning, and a crude knobstick which he had fashioned from a fallen limb.

One day, as he hunted, a pair of savage eyes discovered him from the concealment of the branches of a great tree beneath which the black warrior passed. Bloodshot, wicked eyes they were, set in a fierce and hairy face.

The creature was Chulk, and he looked down upon the unconscious man more in curiosity than in hate. Chulk eyed the pouch which, suspended over Mugambi's shoulder, swung beside his black hip. This took his fancy, for it was ornamented with feathers and a fringe, and so the ape hung about Mugambi's boma, waiting an opportunity to seize it either by stealth or might.

Nor was it long before the opportunity came. Feeling safe within his thorny enclosure Mugambi was wont to stretch himself in the shade of his shelter during the heat of the day, and sleep in peaceful security until the declining sun carried with it the enervating temperature of midday.

Watching from above, Chulk saw the black warrior stretched thus in the unconsciousness of sleep one sultry afternoon. He approached the sleeper upon padded feet which gave forth no sound, and with an uncanny woodcraft that rustled not a leaf or a grass blade.

Pausing beside the man, the ape bent over and examined his belongings. The only detachable things were the knobstick and the pouch, which had fallen from the black's shoulder as he rolled in sleep.

Seizing these two articles, Chulk retreated with haste, and every indication of nervous terror, to the safety of the tree from which he had dropped and, still haunted by that indefinable terror which the close proximity of man awakened in his breast, fled precipitately through the jungle.

It was some time after Mugambi awoke that he missed the pouch. Instantly he was all excitement. What could have become of it? It had been there when he lay down to sleep. How then had it vanished?

In the trampled turf beside him was the faint impress of huge, manlike feet. Mugambi raised his brows as the truth dawned upon him. Hastily leaving the boma he searched in all directions about the enclosure for some further sign of the tell-tale spoor; but the faint signs left by a wary ape who elects to travel through the trees eluded the woodcraft of Mugambi. Tarzan might have followed them; but no ordinary mortal could perceive them, or perceive, translate.

The black, now strengthened and refreshed by his rest, felt ready to set out again for Waziri, and finding himself another knobstick, turned his back upon the river and plunged into the mazes of the jungle.

As Taglat struggled with the bonds which secured the ankles and wrists of his captive, the great lion that eyed the two from behind a nearby clump of bushes wormed closer to his intended prey.

The ape's back was toward the lion. His first intimation of impending danger was the thunderous and triumphant roar which the charging lion could no longer suppress.

Scarce pausing for a backward glance, Taglat abandoned the unconscious woman and fled in the opposite direction from the horrid sound which had broken in so unexpected and terrifying a manner upon his startled ears; but the warning had come too late to save him, and the lion, in his second bound, alighted full upon the broad shoulders of the anthropoid.

As the great bull went down there was awakened in him to the full all the cunning, all the ferocity, all the physical prowess which obey the mightiest of the fundamental laws of nature, the law of self-preservation, and turning upon his back he closed with the carnivore in a death struggle so fearless and abandoned that for a moment the great Numa himself may have trembled for the outcome.

Rolling over and over upon the turf the two battled with demoniac fury until the colossal cat, by doubling his hind paws far up beneath his belly, sank his talons deep into Taglat's chest, then, ripping downward with all his strength, Numa accomplished his design and the disemboweled anthropoid, with a last spasmodic struggle, relaxed in limp and bloody dissolution beneath his titanic adversary.

Scrambling to his feet, Numa looked about quickly in all directions, as though seeking to detect the possible presence of other foes; but only the still and unconscious form of the girl, lying a few paces from him, met his gaze, and with an angry growl he placed a forepaw upon the body of his kill and raising his head gave voice to his savage victory cry.

For another moment he stood with fierce eyes roving to and fro about the clearing. At last they halted for a second time upon the girl. Like two yellow-green augers, wide and unblinking, the terrible eyes remained fixed upon Jane Clayton. The erect and majestic pose of the great frame shrank suddenly into a sinister crouch as, slowly and gently as one who treads on eggs, the devil-faced cat crept forward toward the girl.

Benevolent Fate maintained her in happy unconsciousness of the dread presence sneaking stealthily upon her. She did not know when the lion paused at her side. She did not hear the sniffling of his nostrils as he smelled about her. She did not feel the heat of the feld breath upon her face, nor the dripping of the saliva from the frightful jaws half opened so close above her.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

We can be what we will be, but only by holding ourselves to consistent and well-calculated thought and action.—Sheldon Leavitt.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A most appetizing salad dressing which is especially nourishing served on head lettuce or the leaf lettuce is:

Cream Cheese Dressing.—Take one cream cheese, mash and mix with a half teaspoonful of onion juice, half a teaspoonful each of mustard, salt and paprika, a dash of cayenne, a teaspoonful of sugar. Mix well, then add to a French dressing made by using six tablespoonfuls of oil and two of vinegar beaten thick. Add the cream cheese gradually until well mixed and smooth. Serve well chilled on crisp fresh lettuce.

Jellied Apples.—Melt a cupful of sugar in a cupful of boiling water and when boiling hot add three cored and peeled apples. Turn the apples while cooking to cook tender throughout without spoiling the shape. Let the apples cool. To the syrup add leftover canned fruit juices, such as pineapple, peach or pear, making one and three-fourths cupfuls of juice all together. In this dissolve one tablespoonful of granulated gelatin softened in one-fourth cupful of cold water, add the juice of half a lemon and let chill. Set one-half of a walnut meat in the bottom of a cup, above it set the cooked apples, pour in a tablespoonful of jelly and as it thickens add more to fill the cup. Mold the rest of the jelly in a shallow dish and use it as a garnish for the unmolded apples. Serve with cream as a dessert or as a salad with French dressing.

Lemon Jumbles.—Beat two-thirds of a cupful of shortening to a cream; add a scant cupful of sugar gradually and the grated rind of a lemon; add two eggs beaten light, two tablespoonfuls of thick sour milk, half a teaspoonful of salt, two cupfuls of sifted flour and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda. Mix and cut into rings with a doughnut cutter, sprinkle with sugar and bake. This makes 40 cookies.

Fried Bananas.—Cut bananas a little underripe in halves crosswise, then in halves lengthwise. Roll in flour and saute quickly in butter, browning on both sides. Serve at once. Very nice as a garnish for broiled steak.

Olive and Celery Sandwiches.—Chop celery and stuffed olives separately and very fine. Mix these with mayonnaise dressing and use as a filling for bread prepared for sandwiches. Chopped pecan meats or chicken may be added for variety.

If we looked for people's virtues And the faults refused to see, What a pleasant, cheerful, happy Place this world would be.

HELPFUL HINTS.

The ordinary observer at the table feels much better qualified to carve the fowl than the man at the head of the table. A tactful guest will be happily entertained by the hostess or the lady next, rather than stare the fowl out of countenance while the host is wrestling with the carving. Some one has said that she is indeed a true entertainer who can hold the attention of the guests from the carving.

A well-cooked fowl and carefully kept tools will make the carving a pleasure, and some skillful carvers enjoy being the center of attraction.

A well-trussed bird looks better on the table than does a bird with legs and wings at all angles. If the shins have been removed from the legs before cooking they (the legs) will be much better eating.

A variety of vinegars to be used in salad making may be prepared at home. Let the peelings and clean bits of apples soak in cold water; pour off the water and let it stand in a warm place. Add a small bit of vinegar plant, and in a few weeks you will have good vinegar. Add a bit of mint to one bottle, let it stand for two weeks, then strain. Any herb may be used in the same way for vinegar flavor.

When the egg-beater slips a cog place it so that the head of the bolt which holds the wheel to the frame is resting on an iron. With a few blows of the hammer the trouble will be removed.

Dusting with talcum or cornstarch softens the life of rubber gloves.

Rousseau said that one proof that the taste of meat is not natural to the human palate is the indifference which children have for that kind of food, and the preference they give to vegetables.

A WHOLE MEAL IN ONE DISH.

Hot supper or luncheon dishes are appropriate for a main dish at dinner when the rest of the menu permits. The following dish is nourishing enough for a dinner dish:

Spanish Meat Dish.—Cover the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish with thinly sliced uncooked potatoes, cover with a thin layer of finely shredded onion, add salt and pepper, any meat broth or gravy, the amount depending upon the size of the dish of potatoes. Then add a layer of thinly sliced cold roast beef, season and cover with a half-inch layer of cooked tomato. Cook for an hour, leaving tightly covered the first 50 minutes. Serve from the dish in which it was baked. Just before serving garnish with three tablespoonfuls of cooked peas.

Scalloped Vegetables.—Butter a baking dish suitable for the table and in it put a layer of corn, season with salt and pepper, add a few bits of butter, then a layer of the pulp of canned tomato; add a thin layer of finely sliced onion and repeat. Cover and let cook one hour. Remove the cover and spread over the top a thick layer of buttered cracker crumbs. Brown and serve.

Macaroni With Eggs.—Cook one cupful of macaroni until tender in boiling salted water, drain and put a layer into a well-buttered baking dish which may be used as the serving dish. Cover with half a cupful of rich white sauce made with two tablespoonfuls of butter bubbling hot added to two tablespoonfuls of flour and when well blended cook with a cupful of rich milk. Then add a teaspoonful of grated onion or onion juice, a teaspoonful of anchovy essence and three hard-cooked eggs cut in eighths. Repeat with the macaroni and white sauce, adding a little grated cheese if the anchovy is not liked. Bake until well heated and serve piping hot. The seasoning of this dish is most important. Plenty of salt, a dash or two of cayenne and a little of paprika will be needed.

Most kinds of fresh fish may be cooked in from fifteen minutes to half an hour if pan-broiled.

Remember that you have only one body and that it is easier to keep it well than to build it up after you have mistreated it.

WAYS WITH POTATOES.

As there are several thousand ways of preparing potatoes, it seems as if for variety it is wise to enlarge on one's repertoire.

Potatoes of uniform size and shape should be saved for baking, while the imperfect in shape and size may be steamed in their skins, peeled and used for various dishes like creamed potatoes, salads or escaloped dishes.

Curried Potatoes.—Make a white sauce of four tablespoonfuls of fat, one tablespoonful of cornstarch and two cupfuls of milk. Melt the butter, add the starch, then when well mixed add salt, pepper and four tablespoonfuls of cheese. To a quart of cooked minced potatoes add a medium-sized onion; add the sauce to the potato with a teaspoonful of curry powder, turn into a greased baking dish and bake until brown in a moderate oven.

Potato Soup.—Scald one quart of milk with two slices of onion. Remove the onion and add the milk slowly to two cupfuls of hot rice potatoes. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add two of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, stir and mix well; add pepper, celery salt, and add to the hot milk; cook until smooth. Strain if necessary, add one teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and serve.

Potato Stuffing for Fowl.—Take two cupfuls of mashed potato, one and one-fourth cupfuls of bread crumbs, one-fourth of a cupful of butter, one egg beaten, one teaspoonful of salt, the same of sage and one finely chopped onion. Combine the ingredients and mix them well together.

NICE SETS PACE FOR CHIC GOWNS

The opening of the race course at Nice and the presence of many prominent visitors, among whom the American contingent did not lack full representation, mean a brilliant social season, which in turn signifies an assemblage of lovely clothes, writes a prominent fashion correspondent.

No more beautiful background for clothes is to be found in the world than Nice, situated as it is on the border of the Mediterranean; just where the Var river, a mountain stream of great beauty and swiftness, flows into the sea. The long range of verdant mountains, the Maritime Alps, are directly visible from the grandstand. The beauty of sea, sky and land is spread before the eyes. The Var valley leading off to the west and north is fragrant with blossoms and full of historic interest and romance.

Small wonder, then, that here this social season should open with unwonted brilliancy. Many women wore their long sable mantles, but left them swinging open to show their charming new frocks in bright or dull lined silks. These fur mantles are still being worn on the Riviera, because after four in the afternoon a cold wind springs up, and if one is driving in an open car or standing about it is absolutely necessary to have a warm wrap.

Several new cloth coats were seen. A beautiful color effect is carried out in the loose, wrappy coat of putty-gray burella worn over a bright tartan silk in which red, black and white are second topcoat, one coppery and the other a fawn tone, an entirely new effect is obtained. The cloth selected for this model is duvetyne, the copper color being used for the coat itself while the fawn shade makes a standing collar which is set inside the rolling shawl collar of copper colored cloth, while the turnback cuffs over the very loose sleeves are of the lighter toned material. The coat is lined with a pale fawn shade and the frock worn with it is of fawn duvetyne, like that which trims the coat.

New Cloth Coat Is of Putty-Gray Burella Trimmed With Red Patent Leather Worn With Smart Plaid Silk Dress in Red, Black and White, Lining of the Coat Being of the Same Tartan.

The restaurants of both Monte Carlo and Nice have been very gay. The most extreme Goya styles appeared in evening dresses. The hips were widely extended, forming a veritable shelf on either side of the figure, which swung and tilted as the wearer walked or danced. The most pronounced of these models were those created by Lanvin, who seems determined to adhere to this Spanish style. These costumes are largely a question of skirt, the bodice being of a secondary importance.

Daring Evening Costume at Nice.

One of the most daring evening costumes worn at Nice is developed in black satin, with hollow jet balls outlining the hooplike extensions. The bretelle-like bodice of white tulle has a delicate lattice of jet spotted with large jet disks. The Spanish atmosphere of this striking toilette is further accentuated by a high comb of carved shell of the purest blond quality. This comb differs, however, from the ordinary shell comb in that only the frame is of the pale yellow tortoise shell, inside of which is stretched an exquisite panel of real Chantilly lace, thus making the comb almost transparent.

How Soft Taffeta May Be Used

An interesting model developed by Lanvin is a striking illustration of how beautifully the new soft taffetas may be used to make straight-line dresses. In this instance dark blue taffeta is chosen. The sleeves are in bishop or peasant style, a striking contrast to the very short cap sleeves. The round high collar in choker form is in direct opposition to the low neck, collarless frock.

Both Lanvin and Jenny are strongly advocating the full length sleeve and the high collar in their simple silk dresses designed for afternoon wear. Jenny charmingly combines printed chiffon with foulard in a simple chemise frock. The upper part of the dress and narrow foundation skirt are both of the printed chiffon, the pattern of which is a graduated spot design in black on a white background.

New Hats Numerous. New hats were as numerous as spring blossoms, the cellophane or varnished braids scoring a big success. Very little is being used except these glossy hats solidly embroidered or appliqued in bright, contrasting colors. The narrow brim sailor, the draped

THE ALBATROSS.

Nick and Nancy had just read a famous poem about an albatross; that is, they said it talked of such a bird or creature, and as they knew nothing about an albatross or his ways or his family, they would love it if Daddy would tell them something about it.

"Indeed," said Daddy, "I will. You know now, come to think of it, some time ago I said to myself that I must tell you an albatross story—telling all that the albatross does, and how he looks, and how he builds his nest.

"And then somehow I forgot about it, and then it slipped my mind or some such dreadful thing."

Daddy laughed and Nick and Nancy said: "We're so glad, though, that you will tell us an albatross story."

"And please begin at once," said Nick. "Yes, please," said Nancy.

"Well, that is best—to begin at once," said Daddy.

"Far down in south Georgia, in an island far off from here, which you will find in your geography if you will look it up, the Albatross family make their nest.

"In November, which is like our May where they live, they leave the ocean over which they've been wandering, and then they begin to make their home.

"Young Alec Albatross admired Miss Alice Albatross immensely. He began to pay her marked attention and he danced for her and sang for her and gobbled for her and shrieked for her.

"Will you be my albatross?" he said. "Will you be my albatross, sweet little albatross mate? Of course you aren't so very little, but I call you little because I love you and like to call you by pet names.

"Yes, will you be my albatross?"

"And Miss Alice Albatross sang back: 'I will be your albatross.' They have no family name such as the Johnny Penguins have. Johnny Penguin is a family name, but these birds are only known as the Albatross family, and their other names are not family names, but just names to call them by.

"Well, after Miss Albatross had decided to become Mrs. Albatross they began scraping and pulling and digging at the ground to make a cone-shaped nest. They made it very high and then they laid the single egg, which is their custom.

"Mr. Albatross helped his wife in everything she did, taking turns to watch over the egg. He was very handsome with his white body, his touches of color on wings and back. He watched ahead of him and sideways to see that all was well.

"For a long time after the children from the nests all about are really able to look after themselves they still stay about their homes and where the colonies of many of the family are. But when the time for more little ones to come to the nests comes about the older ones go off with patches of gray down still about their plumage.

"Ah," said Mr. Albatross, "I always feared I wouldn't win you. You had so many devoted admirers. There they all were with their chests stuck out, throwing out their wings and making such fine gestures, and trying to make you look at each of them alone.

"Ah, I felt you liked us all the same at first, but then to my happiness I saw that you didn't, and that the others who had sought you for their bride were going away with their heads held low and waving them from side to side."

"Mrs. Albatross smiled to herself. She had thought it quite proper not to show Mr. Albatross too quickly that she liked him the best.

"They were sitting now on one of the stalks which formed a sort of courtyard to their nest. Mrs. Albatross was sitting in a very dignified manner while Mr. Albatross was at her feet, squatting before her and looking at her with adoring eyes.

"They would touch their bills and stroke each other's necks and they would sing in their squawky voices, and Mr. Albatross would pose and make fine gestures for her so she wouldn't be sorry she had chosen him.

"They take turns, as I said before," continued Daddy, "to sit on the egg. Sometimes the one who has gone off will be gone a number of days looking for squids, their favorite food, but the one behind never moves from his place on the nest, but takes naps with his head under his wing.

"And, also, they are fussing with their home, making it softer and nicer all the time and looking out at the world with happy, soft brown eyes."

NEW IN THE ANIMAL WORLD

"Okapi" Astonished Explorers, and Only a Few Specimens Have Ever Been Obtained.

Some time before 1890, Stanley, the explorer, had word from the pigmy negroes of a new beast in the impenetrable depths of the virgin forest which borders the Semliki river in the Belgian Congo. The Wambatti natives described it as a species of donkey and called it "Atti." From their further description, it seemed to be a hooved animal of considerable size, which lived upon leaves. In 1899 Sir Harry Johnston himself saw the pigmies, who fully confirmed what Stanley had already told him, but added that the strange beast was striped like a zebra.

In 1901 a Swedish officer, M. Karl Erikson, obtained a complete skin and two skulls, which he sent to Sir Harry Johnston, who then believed the beast to be of the giraffe tribe, previously found in a fossil state in Greece. It was, however, proved conclusively that although of the giraffe family it was not the animal of ancient Greece, but a new beast altogether. It was subsequently given the name of "Okapi." No more than a dozen specimens of this wonderful beast have been secured.

"GOD BLESS YOU'S" MEANING

Expression of Soliditude That Can Be Traced Back to the Decline of Athens.

The Greeks and Romans had their "Long life to you!" Gesundheit! is now verboten. But we still say "Sante" and "God bless you!" after a sneeze.

This expression of soliditude can be traced back to the decline of Athens. One of the terrible devastating plagues which darkened the pages of European history was raging in the famous city. The flower of Greece, her foremost writers and artists, the founders of much of our modern culture, were ruthlessly cut down. The dead piled high, and daily Athenian courage was taxed to the fullest. But to every home where lay a victim, the elixir of hope, the rainbow of promise, was the sneeze, for it indicated to the watchers that the danger was passed, that the patient would recover. A few centuries later another epidemic assailed Europe, but this time the sneeze, being a symptom of the malady, was a bad omen.

In this age of witches, goblins, medicine men and leeches superstition flourished. Some of the most intellectual minds of the time accredited charms and soothsayers. It was therefore nothing extraordinary for the pope to decree the exclamation "God bless you!" by anyone who heard a sneeze. This was supposed to combat its evil powers and prevent the spread of the disease. And "God bless you!" with its kindly human interest has come down through the ages.

"The People of the Pelop Peninsula."

We were floating down the beautiful Piongdong when, describing a glorious whangdoo hid amongst the igfians along the swampt (shore), I instantly ordered the moggong to row the gooping toward it. Obeying my command with an alacrity that proved his devotion to me, the little fellow pulled lustily on the right tingwop (oar or paddle) until, by virtue of his efforts, we were headed in the direction whence had come the vision of the multi-colored whangdoo. My readers will readily appreciate the tremendous excitement that seized me when I say that the whangdoo was of unusual size and of a conformation that would preclude the possibility of anyone for a moment mistaking it for the ogglop, which, as everyone knows, it so much resembles.—(After the Manner of Most Travel Articles.)—From Life.

Textile consists of a paper thread and a fiber thread twisted together, and, though the percentage of long fiber is very small, it is claimed to have yielded products that the uninitiated cannot distinguish from the former linen and jute fabrics.

2:30 p. m. Thursday, Bible class at Mrs. M. O. Downs' on Victoria Lane.

Last Sunday in the Hall was one of real blessing. The subject for the morning was "Divine Deliverances," taken from 2 Cor. 1:10-11. It was shown that the past, present and future deliverances are grounded upon the immutable unchangeable grace of Christ Jesus.

In the evening Dr. Rawlings took for his subject "Mistress' Great Faith," Mark 7:24-37, and those who were helped by the morning sermon received still greater blessing in the evening.

Mr. Ric led in the Young People's meeting. The subject "Courage" was especially appropriate as some of the soldier boys who have been regularly attending the meetings of Bethany church, were leaving their native shores for Honolulu the next morning. Bethany church will miss these soldier boys, but is glad to have been able to help them as she has, and it is with her prayers for their good that they have gone forth at the call of duty.

Next Sunday will be the first Sunday in the Woman's Club house and all are cordially invited to the various meetings.

NOTICE TO REMOVE WEEDS, ETC.

Ordinance No. 235 of the City of Sierra Madre, adopted July 24, 1919, requires the removal from all properties within the City limits of all rubbish, weeds and rank growths which may become a fire hazard, or which may be otherwise objectionable.

Unless the work is done by those interested as owners, tenants or agents, it becomes the duty of the Superintendent of Streets to have the work done; and the cost of the work, together with incidental expenses, is made a lien upon the property affected.

You are therefore notified to comply at once with the provisions of said ordinance in order that the danger of fire may be minimized as much as possible during the dry season.

I expect to begin work on all premises requiring attention about June 1st, 1920, where the parties interested have neglected to perform the duties imposed by said ordinance.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

By Mrs. Palmer Rhodes.

At the social meeting of the Woman's club on Monday afternoon, the members were most pleasantly entertained by Miss Helen Mauzy, soloist, who appeared in recital with a repertoire of beautiful and difficult selections, which she rendered with perfect ease. Miss Mauzy, a brunette of striking beauty, possesses a voice of unusual range for one so young, her high notes being bird like in their clearness and sweetness of tone. Following the musical program the following ladies were appointed on the nominating committee: Miss Elizabeth Steinberger, Mrs. Jack Wright, and W. H. Ingraham. A social hour over the teacups with Mrs. C. W. Jones and Mrs. A. T. Gay as hostesses terminated a most pleasant afternoon.

Dramatic Section

At 1:30 on Monday afternoon the drama section of the club met with Mrs. Goldsmith in the club parlors, where plans for the splendid "May-Mask" to which the class have been looking forward all during the season, were partially made, and the date set for the afternoon and evening of May 29. A special meeting of the drama section will be held on Monday, May 3, when more complete arrangements will be made, of which the public will be kept informed through these columns. Mrs. E. W. Camp has kindly consented to allow the "Mask" to be held on the beautiful grounds surrounding her home.

Dance

On Friday evening, April 30, there will be a "sport dance" at the club house, given under the direction of the Woman's club. Sport clothes will be most distinctly the clothes of the evening, and good sport will be the keynote of all pleasures of the evening. Come and enjoy yourself with the rest of the sports.

A COME BACK

The minstrel joke about me and the formula for making a high-kicking beverage was sprung at the show by Mr. Gay because he hoped the kick would prove fatal and give him a job. (adv) GEO. P. RAY.

Just Where and How Is the Money to be Spent?

A businesslike Answer to a businesslike Question

THIRTY denominations cooperating in the Inter-church World Movement have budgeted their needs. No business could have done it more scientifically.

They have united to prevent the possibility of duplication or waste. At least a million dollars will be saved by the fact that thirty individual campaigns are joined in one united effort.

Each denomination has arranged its budget under six main heads:

1 FOR THE CHURCH'S WORK AT HOME. A score of millions of people under this head. Consider only one. Five and a half million people in the United States cannot even read and write the English language. Who is to carry forward this vast work of Americanization if the church does not?

2 FOR HOSPITALS AND HOMES. Every year thousands of men and women seriously ill are turned away from Church hospitals because of lack of room. The children's homes are compelled to turn away more children than they can receive.

3 FOR HIGHER EDUCATION. Of the 450,000 American students in institutions of higher grade, one-half are in institutions founded and supported by the Churches. Many of these institutions have had no great endowment campaigns, but their needs are just as pressing as the needs of larger schools; and you have only to read their list of alumni and alumnae to measure the value of their contribution to America.

4 FOR RELIGIOUS TRAINING. At least 12,000,000 children and young people under 25 years of age are entering American life without any religious training at all. Remembering the faith of Washington and Lincoln, do you think that America will continue to produce Washingtons and Lincolns if faith dies out of the hearts of its youth?

5 ABROAD. Influenza came first from the Orient thirty years ago; nearly all plagues are Oriental plagues. So long as China has only one physician to every 400,000 people the Orient will continue to be a menace. So long as one-third of the babies of India die before their second year our own babies are not safe. A Christian doctor or teacher sent abroad is working for America as truly as though he worked at home.

6 PREACHERS' SALARIES. The preacher is called the "forgotten man," and well he may be. Right out of ten preachers are paid less than $20 a week!

Each denomination has its own detailed budget, and will administer its own funds. Your pastor has copies of the budget; examine them for yourself. In the week of April 25th-May 2nd you will be given your opportunity to help. You can do it with the full satisfaction of knowing that every dollar of your gift has its post assigned to it in advance.

Every dollar for better America and a better world. When your church calls on you give—and give with your heart as well as your pocket-book.
